Montgomery County, Virginia – The National Association of County Information Officers (NACIO) recognized Montgomery County's Public Information Internet & Design Specialist Kim Kullman in its 2009 Awards of Excellence competition.

Kullman received awards of excellence for an employee newsletter and the logo she designed for Montgomery County Parks and Recreation. Public Information oversees publications, graphic design, web sites and video programs that are aired on Blacksburg's WTOB and the County's YouTube site, www.youtube.com/user/montgomeryva.

The 2009 NACIO Awards of Excellence competition covered projects produced and/or distributed from Jan. 1, 2008, to Dec. 31, 2008. NACIO is an affiliate of NACo, the National Association of Counties. The organization represents several hundred communication professionals who work for more than 3,000 counties, boroughs and parishes across the nation.

Entries were judged for their originality, effectiveness, results, degree of effort and difficulty, overall quality, and strength of impression. The awards will be given at NACo's Annual Conference in Nashville, Tenn., on July 24.
